NEW YORK—Look for Don McNeill and his defunct “TV Club” (which goes off the air Dec. 19) to return to the video lanes before Spring. The genial emcee, favorite of the housewives for years on radio, will probably do a simulcast of his “Breakfast Club” chatter stint . . . Greta Garbo, the beautiful, but elusive film vamp of the thirties, will come out of her strange retirement for a single shot on “Celanese Theater” sometime in January. The Swedish star will do Eugene O’Neill’s scorcher “Anna Christie” . . . Edward R. Murrow’s new “See It Now,” drawing critical raves for its fine production and smooth commentary, is about to be rewarded with a sponsor . . . Indefatigable Ethel Barrymore has signed for a big TV film deal in which the first lady of the stage will introduce a drama each week—as well as take part in it. Show is tentatively called “Ethel Barrymore Theater.”

Baseball’s stormy petrel Leo Durocher—who has made more celebrity appearances than he has won pennants—will team with his actress-wife Larraine Day in a new video show. The fifteen minute stint, entitled “The Hot Stove League” will feature guest celebrities in baseball discussions with the Durochers . . . When Warren Hull asked a lady contestant if she owned any pets on his “Strike It Rich” teevee show, the woman answered she had a cat named Ben Hur. Hull then wanted to know how she came to pick the name. “Well,” said the woman, “we called it Ben until she had kittens.”

Milton Berle is slated to stop working as straight entertainer in the near future and devote his time to producing and directing. Uncle Miltie, firmly entrenched in TV with that fabulous thirty year pact with NBC, might be tiring of his own material . . . The late Tom Breneman’s famous Hollywood breakfast show is to be revived on TV . . . Garry Moore, the CBS-TV clown, tells of the customer in a restaurant who complained to the waitress. “What sort of trash do you serve here”? he demanded. “Why, this food is absolutely poisonous!” Looking down at his plate again he added, “And such small portions, too!” . . . A two hour, nation wide talent hunt via TV is slated to bow after the first of the year with the tag “NBC Tryouts”. . . With long term contracts the accepted procedure with television stars, the zany Ritz Brothers are dickering with CBS for a 10 year deal involving a series of thirty minute stanzas.

Plans to televise next year’s Academy Award Banquet have been vetoed. Too many mechanical difficulties . . . Although Jack Haskell and Connie Russell, singing stars with Dave Garroway on his last season’s “At Large” show, plan to follow “Old Tiger” to New York for his morning TV experiment, Cliff Norton and Bette Chappel—also of the Garroway crew—are as yet undecided . . . Ginger Rogers, currently charming Broadway theater-goers with an expensive wardrobe which draws more applause than the play itself, has signed an exclusive five year pact with CBS-TV . . . NBC is testing Robert Q. Lewis for a video version of “Rate Your Mate” . . . Bing Crosby is making his TV debut next fall using a new sight sound tape which Der Bingle’s research engineers are perfecting. The new taping device is hailed as being superior to film or kinescope techniques.

... I'm a midwest booster. But let's face the fact that we are not infallible. Chicago has been patted on the back for its "informal" touch. ... But informality doesn't mean sloppy camera work, muffed lines, uninteresting fill-in chatter. ... New York rehearsals are more businesslike, and their finished broadcasts show it. ... The best actors want to be presented under the best possible conditions, with the finest technicians in back of them—producers, directors, cameramen, lighting and sound technicians. I'm sure we have the talent here, but we don't have the polish.

NO married couple ever tripped through as unlikely a series of “everyday” episodes as do Lucy and Ricky Ricardo—in real life Lucille Ball and her husband Desi Arnaz. As stars of the new TV situation comedy “I Love Lucy,” the Ricardos do everything a normal pair of lovebirds would like to do—but never find the chance.

If Lucy isn’t making up like a clown to get in a vaudeville act, she is avoiding a “plot” by Ricky to “bump her off” or scheming with her neighbor Ethel for “equal rights for women.” Whatever’s going on, there’s a lot of TV slapstick and strained comedy during the proceedings.

Yet the net result of such nonsense is one of the slickest, fastest moving comedy shows on the air. There are two reasons for this: one is the expert dialogue the show is graced with; the other is the red haired bombshell who delivers it—Lucille Ball.

Emerging as the top comedienne of her kind in TV, Miss Ball is the whole show as Lucy. Portraying more than a “Claudia” she is an electric personality with an expressive face that can show dumb-founded amazement as well as a pixie impishness. She is forever on the go, befuddling Ricky, the neighbors and sometimes herself.

Playing a likeable, if somewhat doltsish husband is Lucille’s hubby Desi Arnaz. A perfect match for the scatter-brained, stage struck Lucy, Ricky is no model of a restraining manhood. Viewers wonder how he can be so naively stupid at times. They wonder, that is, until realizing that not everyone could live with a gal like Lucy.

Miss Ball is familiar to movie goers for playing the same kind of roles as Lucy in front of Hollywood cameras. “Her Husband’s Affairs,” “Easy To Wed,” “Best Foot Forward” and “DuBarry Was A Lady” were some of her more memorable vehicles.

Desi Arnaz met Miss Ball when the two were co-starred in the movie version of “Too Many Girls” and then married her in 1940. The two have a daughter, Lucy Desiree Arnaz, born in July of this year.

The immediate success of “I Love Lucy” is a good indication of what will eventually predominate along the TV lanes. Filmed TV, done in the same high grade manner of “Amos ’n’ Andy” and “Mama,” points the way to more long range “family” shows with a basic formula that will last for years instead of the week-to-week variety technique. “I Love Lucy” is viewed Mondays at 8:00 p.m. on channel 4 (WBKB).
TV'S DEMENTED

Spike Jones and the Boys
Spoof the Masters

"LET's say a dog gets loose on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House and it starts howling at the soprano during her aria. That's something everyone would like to see—just like the urge to spit over a balcony."

With this down-to-earth comment on universal manners and instincts, Lindley Murray (Spike) Jones sums up his feelings as to why he takes special pleasure in spoofing some of the great melodies of our time. With the aid of a motley collection of zanies called the City Slickers, Jones has single-handedly taken on the job of keeping venerable and bearded composers constantly twirling around in their graves.

Any person not already familiar with this assemblage of musical assassins is in for a complete surprise when he hears Spike Jones and the boys for the first time. No number is sacred to them. They have mutilated, scarred and plain kidded the pants off such stand-bys as "The William Tell Overture," "Old Black Magic," "Blue Danube Waltz" and "Liebestraum."

When the Slickers (some are pictured on these pages) play it "straight" it usually means the horseplay is yet to come. The band strikes up a semi-classical selection and their sober faced conductor bandies his baton around with the poise of a Stokowski. The melody is true and the proceedings smack of strait-laced artistry.

Then to the impish cue of an old fashioned Bronx raspberry the artistry ceases. Sirens, bells and some strange nasal sounds blend with a stepped-up tempo. A tin horn replaces the trumpet; a washboard takes over for the drums and a male vocalist begins singing in a shaky falsetto. A squealing blonde dashes on the stage chased by a bug-eyed individual with a butcher knife in his hand.

The resulting din and cacophony is the obvious doings of the undisputed "Caliph of Corn," madcap Spike Jones.

The organizing force behind this corny approach to music spent the early part of his professional career as a good, but bored drummer. He played for a number of years with John Scott Trotter, the musical conductor for the Bing Crosby show.

From time to time Spike and some of the boys used to let their minds wander, knocking out impromptu, novel stuff which they thought worthwhile recording. Some of their first disks were satires on “Red Wing,” “Behind Those Swinging Doors” and “Pass the Biscuits, Mirandy.” Spike’s first big hit, however, was the one that catapulted him to the top. It was the brassy “Der Fuehrer’s Face,” a timely lampoon of Adolph Hitler.

“Der Fuehrer’s Face” was such a success Spike figured he had a money-making venture. He thus organized a “Musical Depreciation Revue,” charged legit show prices and began to tour the country. Armed with such favorites as “Cocktails for Two” and “Chloe,” the road version proved a whopping success both financially and artistically—if any Spike Jones offering could be so labeled.

Actually every City Slicker number is a labor of precision. What might seem like musical ad-libbing and nonsense is, in truth, a carefully synchronized hodge-podge of sharps and flats which requires hours more preparation than a regular number.

Props are as important in the Spike Jones set-up as are the instruments. Eggs, croquet mallets, pistols, popguns, headless bodies, white pigs, an ostrich and many other changing props are essential to the band. Spike himself is forever inventing and buying zany home made instruments. He owns, among other things, a poontangaphone (a cigar box and a lathe), an octave of flit guns, and a latrinophone (a toilet seat strung with catgut).

The television appearances of Jones and his City Slickers are, fortunately, infrequent. As an alternate on the Colgate Comedy Hour he has the opportunity to periodically bring fresh material to the consuming demands of television without wearing out himself, the viewers and the medium itself.

Spike Jones is making periodic appearances on the Colgate Comedy Hour, seen Sundays at 7:00 p.m. on channel 5 (WNBQ). Check program listings for complete information.

The Wayne Marlin trio, singers with Spike and his maniacal group, make with the muscles. Far outdone on the sinew side, Spike gets the arm treatment from Dolores Marlin while her brother Glenn (left) and George Wayne pose like budding Atlases.

The Spike Jones family. With the famous King of Corn are his wife, the former Helen Grayco, star singer of his “Depreciation” revue, and their children, two year-old Lindley Murray “Spike” Jr. and the newest addition, daughter Leslie Ann.

After a brief disenchancing experience in Hollywood, Ezio Pinza, the great Italian basso, has settled down comfortably in a new Friday night half hour show that properly showcases his talents.

Pinza’s overwhelming success in the fabulous “South Pacific,” caused the Hollywood moguls to cash in on his new found popularity, but miscasting and mediocre plots stymied Ezio in Hollywood and his two film ventures caused no great stampede at the box office.

The surprising thing about Pinza is that while in many quarters he is considered as the finest singer on earth, he is the first basso to have any real popular appeal. From the moment he appeared as Emile, the French planter in “Pacific” the acclaim accorded him has outdistanced the popularity of any opera star since the heyday of Caruso.

A tall, bull-chested figure topped by grey locks, Pinza’s looks are as impressive as his voice. His superb physical plant was developed in his youth, when he worked professionally as a bike racer.

Pinza’s singing career was launched at the urging of his friends and his great natural talent soon had him treading the hallowed boards of the fabled La Scala Opera House in Milan. It was there that he created his two most famous (pre-South Pacific) roles.

As the magnificent Don Giovanni and the demented Boris Godounov, Pinza set a new style in acting and singing in the grand manner. And the musical comedy field will never be the same since Pinza bellowed out “Some Enchanted Evening.”

In his new Friday slot Pinza will mix up standard favorites with excerpts from his huge operatic repertoire. He should be easy to take with that rich throbbing voice acting as an antidote to the customary wheezing of popular singers.

Some of these Friday evenings ought to be enchanting, anyhow.

The Ezio Pinza Show can be seen Fridays at 7:00 on Channel 5.

DAYTIME TV GOES YAKETY YAK

by JACK MABLEY

The TV Reporter:
Remember when a million dollars was a lot of money? They used to measure the national debt in millions.
Today, $3,000,000 will buy one year’s supply of the old movies which advertisers show on Chicago stations some 60 times a week. The local advertisers put out an additional $5,000,000 for time. Individual movies cost anywhere from a few hundred up to $3,300.

Every once in a while I stay home during the week determined to spend the day looking at the daylight programs. I have yet to last more than an hour, duty or no. Most daytime television is just like a gabby woman who never gives you a letup on her shrill yakety yakety yak. I don’t understand how our beloved wives can keep the doggone contraptions on all day.

A new twist you can look for in TV dramas will be full hour shows done outside of the studios. The Philco Playhouse is contemplating doing a whole show using remote crews in four different points in New York. A similar show may be done from Chicago.

Some of the more imaginative TV writers and directors want to do something different in dramatic technique, and the next logical step is to go on location for live shows.

I’m glad to know you can afford a television set, Perkins. Now I can cut your salary.

Some autobiographical notes supplied by Bill Ballance, producer and sometime comedian on the Frazier Thomas show. Ballance recently migrated from Denver, Colo. “As a disk jockey,” he reports, “I had my own night club, Chez When, and such publications as Good Housebroken Magazine. Also, I founded many innocuous organizations, including the Grand Tabernacle of Emecees Who Never Made the Grade, IndigentAnnouncers’ Co-operative of Central Colorado, Rocky Mountain Association of High-voiced Announcers with Low Incomes; and the Rest Home for Announcers on the Verge of Dismissal."

The coldest female on television is Peggy Lee, with Betty Furness running a close second.

The credits on some television programs are almost as long as the commercials. And you can always tell who the big cheese is on the show, because no matter how fast they speed over the names of the cast, audio engineer, technical director, lighting engineer, assistant to the producer, writer, adapter, choreographer, scenic designer, and what have you, they always linger lovingly on one man—usually the producer or director.

I’m a little late with this, but I can’t resist quoting an Eastern psychologist, who states, “giveaway programs contribute to keeping people immature by catering to their worst characteristics.” The man’s so right, but he shouldn’t confine his opinion to giveaway programs.

How many of you boys and girls like horses? Here’s a picture of a very prominent horse named Dynamont. How’s that for a fancy name? Holding Dynamont is Harvey Dytch, who is pretty well known himself as a Quiz Kid.

This is the fine horse that was given to Harvey by a Texas oil millionaire. So the Quiz Kids program had a name contest and Dynamont was the winning name. That one contest drew more than 127,000 entries. Gosh, how many different horse’s names are there?

Now here are some of my recent contest winners:

THIS WEEK’S CONTEST: Can you name all the different kinds of horses. For the longest list, I’ll award $1; for the next longest 50 cents; the 12 runners-up will get 25 cents each. Mail to Uncle Herbie, % TV Forecast, 185 N. Wabash ave., Chicago 1, Ill. before Sunday, December 15. In case of ties, winners are judged on neatness and originality.
Awards Poll

HERE ARE EARLY POPULARITY LEADERS

Terrific upsets are looming in the third annual Awards Poll contest to find TV’s popularity champions. Dark horses emerging are Lee Schooler in the emcee race, Clifton Utley (newscaster) and Oliver Dragon (male singer). Runaway races are being staged by What’s My Line in the quiz shows and Milton Berle (worst show).

The ballots have swamped the contest editor, and these are early leaders. Mail your ballot today to make your voice heard in TV programming.

TV FORECAST

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO, we met for the first time a newcomer to Chicago television, Barbara Becker, who had joined the "Wayne King Show" at NBC. To us, she was a comer, a gal with talent, personality and individuality. Evidently, she has impressed viewers the same way for, prompted by an earlier column mention, Edith Wilson of Skokie this week wrote: "One day early last week, I saw Barbara Becker on State Street and what I saw impressed me. A pretty blind girl was singing in front of one of the stores. When I stopped to watch, I noticed Miss Becker standing nearby listening intently . . . tears came into those eyes that laugh each week on television. When the girl finished her song, Miss Becker went over and spoke to her for some time. . . . I saw the girl smiling . . . it was good to see someone with talent like Miss Becker's stop to make a day a little happier for someone who has lost one of God's greatest gifts."

FASHION NOTES: Luckey North’s bright blue and grey plaid greatcoat, with attached stole. Luckey confides she likes to slip into a pair of Tina Leser’s bullfighter trousers when she arrives home from the studio. “So comfortable and so dressy.” . . . The handsome gold fur felt that Mary Hartline wears to appointments in town. . . . Kay Westfall’s bright red pumps, smart fashion news this winter.

A STEP UPWARD for Tomi Thurston, the bright starlet of our November 24 talent story, is the speaking assignment on Spiegel’s “Test Lab” on WGN-TV. Tomi handles commercials and appears in some of the skits on this informative program.

LEAVING OUR TOWN today to enter the convent of the Order of the Sisters of St. Francis at Milwaukee is Mary Doherty, the very able secretary of Mary Dooling, director of Radio Talent. Mary will study at the Mother House for several years, then be assigned to a teaching position with the possibility of returning to the Chicago area. We know that all who have met Mary wish her Godspeed.

WITH CHRISTMAS NEARING, we wondered how some of the stars plan to spend the day. . . . Dorsey Connors reveals there will be a third stocking hanging with hers and daughter Stephanie’s this year. No, not a romance, but a tiny one for Victoria, their miniature French poodle. . . . Dorsey’s tree will hold some ornaments which have been in the family for 40 to 50 years. . . . Barbara Moro, the ABC how-to-do-it queen, who reports her show will add time, will celebrate Christmas away from her family for the first time this year. To fill the gap left by family, she will throw open the doors of her new Lake Shore drive apartment for open house on Christmas morning. . . . Guests will find that greys and greens predominate in the decor of the apartment, with a grey corduroy sofa the focal point in the living area.

WHAT DO YOU like most to read about your favorite feminine TV personalities? Won’t you drop us a line and tell us?—p.c.
MARRY a columnist and say goodbye to regular hours, sleep and quiet evenings at home. Marry a columnist and find yourself on friendly terms with top celebrities across the nation. Marry a columnist and find yourself cast in the role of official greeter for YOUR town, hostess to his multitude of friends.

Sounds like a full-time job? It would be to less a person than Essie Kupcinet, wife of the Chicago Sun-Times columnist, Irv Kupcinet, who not only fills all her obligations as his wife but finds time to serve on two charitable boards and co-star with him on a weekly television show.

Essie’s day usually begins about noon and ends at 4 or 5 a.m. the next morning, when Kup returns to the office to complete the next day’s column. Her day’s activities often include lunch at the Pump room with visiting celebrities, board meetings at Fritzel’s, shopping appointments, guests for dinner and an evening spent accompanying Irv to Chicago’s night spots as he gathers news for “Kup’s Column.”

At home, Essie is an informal, gracious and friendly hostess, who must balance her duties as the wife of a celebrated columnist with those of mother to their two children, Cookie, 10 and Jerry, 7. She is responsible for the smooth running of a nine-room, six-bath apartment, whose spacious rooms stretch 1/16 of a mile from end to end.

Essie and Kup moved into their present northside apartment a little over three years ago. The large rooms, tastefully decorated and furnished with comfortable modern pieces, form the backdrop for their entertaining. Entertaining is usually a late evening buffet that enables their friends in show business to drop in after the last show. An evening often will last till the next day.

The evening that we had dinner with Irv and Essie, she greeted us wearing a casual lounging costume of green quilted skirt and weskit, with long-sleeved gold jersey blouse. She led us into the dining room which immediately reminded us of another room.

It was, Irv and Essie do not like dining rooms but do like the Pump room, so they set about to create a Pump room in their own home. “When the late

By Patricia Cooper

Ernie Byfield first saw it he said, ‘Irv, your room is nicer than mine,’” explained Essie. “But Irv said, ‘but yours is filled with such interesting people, Ernie,’ and that seemed to settle matters.”

Ernie later sent them glasses and cups and saucers from the Pump room to carry out the theme.

Celebrities have been a part of the Kupcinets’ private life for over eight years now, since Kup began writing his column. Greats of the entertainment and sports world often visit their home, but the children remain unspoiled by this brush with fame. Cookie, a drama student who shows promising talent, currently has a crush on Johnny Lujack, and comments on him filled most of her conversation that evening.

Irv and Essie usually have dinner at home with the children, for this is one of the few times of the day when the entire family can be together. This is also the hour of the day when they do most of their televiewing. It was a nip and tuck choice between Berle and Sinatra the evening we spent with them.

Essie’s charitable work includes serving on the board of the North Shore Auxiliary to the Jewish Children’s Bureau which takes care of 500 orphans each year, and the board of the Dr.
"Mr. and Mrs. Kup" coming up the next evening, Essie and Kup check the script for the show. They are shown in the handsome living room of their apartment, with its slote grey walls, grey carpeting and upholstered pieces in grey, chartreuse and bright red.

Before leaving for the office at noon, Irv types out some additions for the day's column at his home.

Cookie shows some of her favorite football stores to brother Jerry. Cookie's pink and blue room also includes cabinets which house collection.

Essie takes a call on one of 10 outlets in the apartment, this one in their private Pump room. Irv is one of the few columnists in the nation who is listed in the phone book.

A smart bar fills one corner of the den, with pine paneled wall, cabinets and bookcases, adjacent to it. Louis E. Stolor designed the interiors.

MRS. KUP

Solomon Foundation, a medical research group which is a memorial to her brother who died while serving with the Army Medical Corps in New Guinea during World War II.

Asked her favorite project, she named serving lunch to the children at their respective schools, Girls' Latin and Boys' Latin. "In addition to my regular turns on the mother's committee, I often substitute for other mothers because I so enjoy working with the children. When they are very young, they take anything you put on their plates, when they get a little older, they begin to pick and choose, and the older children all want three times the normal helping!" she went on to explain.

What was the hardest part of adjusting to Irv's work as a columnist? Making up her mind to go with him as much as possible even though it meant keeping strange hours, and learning to meet all types of people from all walks of life. Essie comes from a sheltered home life.

Has she succeeded in this tremendous task, as the wife of Mr. Chicago? We'd say an emphatic yes.

"Mr. and Mrs. Kup," formerly seen at 9:30 p.m. each Saturday on WBKB, channel 4, is temporarily off the air.
Christmas Gifts

Luckey North Suggests
Aprons for Homemakers

Bright colored, smartly designed aprons in cottons, organdies, flowered chintzes and rustling taffetas will find their way to favorites on the Christmas list of Luckey North, seen and heard on WBKB. Luckey, who loves to entertain informally in her Chicago apartment, because "I'm just lazy and make my friends come to me," models some favorites from collections in the apron department, 3rd floor, Mandel's, Chicago.

White and violet print chintz band apron, detailed with organdy insets around the pockets and center design is smart for breakfast, lunch or dinner, says Luckey. $3.98

Luckey admires a black taffeta cocktail apron with multi-color satin stripes. This apron, with pocket on each hip, comes in black only. $3.98

Ingenuity in design produces one of the brightest conversation pieces of the season in this black organdy cocktail apron, with vari-colored removable napkins inserted in pockets circling the hem. $2.98

Luckey, in eyelet-trimmed, pastel blue bib apron, completes her table setting. This fine cotton apron is available in blue, green, orchid and yellow. $1.98

DISTAFF SIDE

DOMINATES "SALUTES"

After a week's recess due to an All Winner's show on the Rubin's "Stars of Tomorrow" the TV Forecast Talent Salute took up where it left off. Appearing on December 2 at 9 p.m. on WGN-TV was Wilma Barnard, representing the Ridge Council of the Knights of Columbus who performed a toe-tap number that proved tops in her neighborhood. A bouncy, attractive troupier, Wilma showed outstanding promise in her field, and as a 14 year-old, has many years in which to gain further experience. She was introduced by Erwin Grey, the K.C. chairman.

Appearing this Sunday, December 9, are the three Monson sisters, winners of the Norwood Park, Edison Park and Higgins Oriole communities. With a score of past accomplishments in the amateur field, the three vocal lovelies just recently became a trio again after a year's absence of the eldest, Lorraine. Shirley and Lois have dueted before but now they are a solid three-some with Lorraine back.

Both these talented acts receive an expense-free weekend at the swank Whitcomb Hotel in St. Joseph, Michigan in addition to a professional appearance there. In cooperation with neighborhood newspapers and civic organizations, TV Forecast and Rubin's stores make these talent hunts possible.

THE CELANESAN THEATRE
in association with the PLAYWRIGHTS presents

"NO TIME FOR COMEDY"
by S. N. BEHRMAN
starring
JEAN PIERRE AUMONT
TONIGHT AT 9:00
WENR-TV CHANNEL 7

This outstanding series of real theatre-on-TV comes to you over ABC Television every other Wednesday. Critics continue to give it top notices.

"Celanese is entitled to first billing for bringing such a fine series to television."
—JOHN CROSBY, New York Herald Tribune

"Lovely, warm and gentle TV accomplishment of the highest artistic order."
—International News Service

"The Celanese Theatre has won the right to be rated with the best dramatic programs in TV."
—The Billboard
Ransom Sherman defines himself as "a guy funny things keep happening to." This self-definition is indisputably proved three times a week when "Mr. All-thumbs" goes through his paces with a sort of resigned frustration while parroting women's household programs.

Rance is the bespectacled comic who devotes his fifteen minute TV stints dabbling with cookery, household hints, beauty and his own strange brand of culture. And like the typical male animal, stripped of all self possession when he enters the lair of the female, Sherman becomes a slave to his outrageous household props.

There are his horticulture tips, for instance. Rance hit upon his own private formula for growing bigger and better household plants. It was a concoction guaranteed to grow healthy foliage on an egg shell, if desired. With Rance handling the operations, though, his plant grew to such proportions it filled the room, pinning him against the wall from which he weakly waved goodbye to his TV audience—a victim again.

This highly polished nonsense, a la Sherman, is TV stuff by popular demand. The critics and viewers alike feel the Ransom Sherman formula has been a strong hypno booster for the medium.

Rance got his start in television as a summer replacement for another top notch Chicago TV entry, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie." His show gained such popularity during the hot months that it was continued for 13 weeks by NBC. The show gained almost every citation possible as the best daytime fare on television.

The fact that Sherman was subsequently forced off the air in spite of such a popular acclaim is one of the mysteries of the trade. According to TV "insiders," the NBC national sales-men in New York slough off "faraway" Chicago shows, and thus Rance and Co. was dropped, lacking a life-sustaining sponsor.

Sherman, a real Chicago pioneer in radio entertainment, was one of the original members of the "Three Doctors" comedy team, a favorite with the crystal set owners. In 1931 he joined NBC in Chicago, then flitted to a few other spots around the country before returning to Chicago in 1936. A year later he launched his "Club Matinee" radio show which he wrote and conducted.

The call of the West prompted Rance to strike out for Hollywood in 1941 where he was to head a radio replacement for "Fibber McGee and Molly." His old friends Jim and Marian Jordan, stars of the popular program, prevailed upon him to remain in Hollywood and join the show's cast. In the several years he lived in Hollywood he played various roles in the "Fibber" cast, notably that of Wallace Wimple, the 40 year-old adolescent with a raving wife called Sweeetyface.

After a brief fling in New York in 1944, Sherman returned to his Windy City starting point with his NBC contract that expired recently. As one of the Midwest's favorite sons, Rance is ably displaying the low pressure, high grade "Chicago touch."

The Ransom Sherman Show can be viewed every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 1:45 p.m. on channel 4.

Rance and producer Jim Green (right) of "The Ransom Sherman Show" stand helplessly as Rance's household plant suffers growing pains.

34 TV FORECAST
DEAR BOSS:

The other Monday night I settled down to enjoy a nice hour-long whodunit show, "The King in Yellow", by Raymond Chandler. But before the first corpse had time to cool I was sitting up on the edge of my seat with spine-chilling horror. This was not the horror spawned by a tense, adroitly-acted murder scene, ah no! My horror came from hearing the actors murder their lines.

Oh, I sat in breathless suspense all right—but it was from worrying where the next fluff was coming from. Finally, the killer gritted his teeth and lurched into a dramatic bit with his intended victim: "You changed the corpse—I mean, you changed the body—ha, ha, ha... what I mean is, you changed the bedspread."

Well, whatever there was left of Chandler's plot had committed hari kari by that time, so I don't know if the killer ever got over his laughing jag or not. I will say there were more comedians than tragedians in the cast. Too bad they weren't doing "Aaron Slick from Pumpkin Crick". All this on my favorite Monday night dramatic program...now called Studio Zero.

I know some people are calling me an old panelpanner, but after watching "Take Two" the other night, here I go again. It used to be sportsy and was called "Two Minutes to Go". Jack Drees is still the MC and it still takes two minutes or less for the panel to guess exactly what some other panel is guessing in twenty questions or less.

Would it be asking too much if someone came up with a new twist on panel shows? (Your heels are run-over bad, men, and you'll soon be walking on your uppers.)

Meantime, "Take Two", why not "Take-at-Least-Ten" to check details a bit more closely. No more fainting us out of position like this last time. The card on the screen said: "Wrong Way Corrigan's Flight", then the panelists start guessing and have the answer in jig time. The answer: Gertie's Garter. CHUB

Mike Boom says . . .

CHICAGO—Most glaring muffs of the current Awards Poll contest occurred when Dave Garroway's "At Large" show, formerly seen on WNBQ, was placed in the Drama category by mistake. Our redfaced contest editor immediately switched dashing Dave (and his votes) to the Nighttime Variety race. But not before Old Tiger's loyal fans bombarded this office with protests.

Evidence Dept.—Announcer Chuck Bill has long been kidded about his Sheffield, Ill., farm, and whether he actually grows anything but TV scripts down there. We now declare the Sheffield region produces fat pheasants and large fresh eggs, Chomp, chomp . . . Don't look now, but Buddy Sarno, who warbled his way to the recent Harvest Moon championship, started his winning ways.

SHOW STOPPER (No. 4)

on our weekly "Stars of Tomorrow" talent salute on WGN-TV one recent Sunday night.

Judith Waller, the gracious education director of WNBQ, is one of a hundred distinguished Americans getting Northwestern U.'s Centennial Award. She's the only broadcasting member to achieve the honor . . . Speaking of awards, Bev Younger of "Studs' Place" has been voted America's favorite TV waitress by 180,000 restaurant owners.

L. O. Gorder of Wilmette, Ill., has put out an interesting book entitled "The Whys and Wherefores of Television." It's illustrated cleverly by artist W. D. Eubanks. Call Uptown 8-2628 if interested. . . . Future findings of the National Television Review Board, published every month in this magazine, will list only variable and objectionable shows, and tell WHY they're considered such.

We're still compiling that Christmas list for local stars. Latest nominations include a stratosphere helmet for 6' 5" Claude Kirchner of Super Circus . . . an engraved mustache cup for WBKB director John Alexander . . . an outdoor stove for Ernie (brrrrr) Simon's outdoor antics.

Send your Christmas gift nominations to Uncle Mike.

WENR-TV Inaugurates Cage Season

FOLLOWING a summer that jarred the teeth out of a once proud sport, collegiate basketball nervously makes its 1951–52 debut over WENR-TV Saturday, Dec. 8 when the University of Pennsylvania plays host to Maryland in Philadelphia. With Kurt Gowdy delegated to do the play-by-play account of the game, ABC-TV will launch an ambitious three month schedule that will bring Chicagoans the home games of Penn and Northwestern on an alternating basis. Northwestern is not slated for video until Jan. 5 when they meet the Ohio State Buckeyes in Evanston.

How these telecasts will affect the paying customers at the Chicago Stadium basketball doubleheaders remains to be seen; however, entrepreneur Art Morse has expressed a desire to telecast all or any part of his Stadium games. . . . Madison Square Garden games, carried by the Dumont network and WGN-TV last year, will be seen over a local station, WPIX in New York, while Fordham, Columbia, and St. Francis will be seen over WOR-TV, also in New York, every Wednesday. So far, there has been no announcement of network TV for these games but it’s possible WGN-TV may pick up some of these telecasts.

LIU quit basketball indefinitely and CCNY plans to play in its home gym in an effort to thwart further scandals. That leaves only NYU, St. John’s and Manhattan to carry the Madison Square Garden banner in ’52. In Chicago, Northwestern dropped out of the Chicago Stadium and DePaul is planning a new fieldhouse of its own for future games.

John P. Carmichael, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News, doing a nice pinch-hitting job on John Bryson’s daily sports telecast over WENR-TV. Bryson, who is now vacationing, requested John fill-in during his absence.

As a result of this trend to move back to their own gyms, the Chicago Stadium has been able to card only seven dates this season. Consequently, TV can bring the games to thousands of students and alumni unable to fit into small campus gymnasiums. DePaul’s gym can accommodate only 1,800 with an enrollment of 8,000. Loyola’s gym holds 3,000; Notre Dame about 2,500, etc.

Light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim, thoroughly trounced by former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles last summer, will seek to avenge his earlier humiliation before WBKB cameras on Wednesday, Dec. 12 from San Francisco’s Cow Palace. . . . In a recent TV Forecast poll, Bert Wall and Gerry Murray were selected by Chicagoans as their favorite skaters. With the support of her fan clubs, Gerry Murray pulled well out in front of her nearest rival—Annis Jensen.
TEN PIN MARION

Ladewig, Junie McMahon. Dick Hoover
Star in 11th All-Star Tournament

The nation's top bowlers, in town to compete in bowling's world's series, the All Star Bowling Tournament, will be seen by Chicagoans in the preliminaries over WGN-TV, Dec. 12, 13, and 15. The finals on Dec. 16 will be seen over another network. (Consult the program listing for times and station.)

In the Chicago Coliseum, home of many of the world's great sport classics, 160 bowlers will vie in match game play for the world's title. The title is presently held by Dick Hoover, 21 year old-husky, who last year astounded the sports world by eliminating, one by one, all the top bowlers in the game.

As an added sidelight to the tourney, a special match game series will be held between Hoover and 1949 champion Jupie McMahon. Last year Junie topped Connie Schwengler in a similar contest.

The women's division also promises some exciting action as defending champ, Mrs. Marion Ladewig, goes for her third consecutive title. Considered in some quarters as the finest woman bowler of all time, Mrs. Ladewig won last year in convincing style. An unprecedented third title would put her amongst the bowling immortals.

Hailing from Grand Rapids, Mich., Marion owns practically every bowling title extant. She is all-events ABC champion and her margin of superiority in last year's all-star tourney was such as to leave her competition in shambles.

Hoover, on the other hand will have stiff competition in his attempt to repeat last year's triumph. Bowling veterans resent the intrusion in their select company of this young upstart and will be out to give him the come-uppance.

Dick started bowling eight years ago and at 21 years he has really arrived. Bracketed with the top stars again, another title would project him into the bowling Hall of Fame.

Stiffest competition for Dick is expected from Buddy Bomar, whose fabulous averages in leagues about Chicago have made him the most talked about bowler in America. Buddy captained the famous Tavern Pales of Chicago's Classic League, America's number one loop. Plump Buddy is a favorite with the lady fans with his dark good looks. When the chips are down, he is one of the toughest competitors in the game.

In any tenpin tussle, a name to be contended with is that of Ned Day, "Mr. Money Bowler," who has been National Match Game champion five times. Known as the smoothest stylist in the game, Ned on two different occasions, has thrown 33 consecutive strikes. His terrific hook ball, although of only medium speed, is known as the deadliest "mixer" in the game. He is only man to ever hold simultaneously the national singles, doubles, and team match game championships.

Probably the most famous bowler that ever lived is Andy Varipapa, bowling's "little giant," who has performed dozens of sensational tricks with a bowling ball. Movie shorts and exhibitions have made his name a household word. There is a tendency to overlook the fact that in competition Andy has also run up a phenomenal record. He is the only ten-pinner ever to win the All-Star Bowling Tournament twice in a row. A perfectionist, he spends most of the year giving exhibitions and instructions.
Berwyn, Ill. is the home town of Joe Wilman, steadiest and surest of all the topnotchers. A “bowler’s bowler” Joe has copped three ABC titles, and one National Match Game championship. The stiffer the competition, the better Joe gets, and his severe pace often “breaks” opponents. He also competes in Chicago’s red hot Classic League and his anchor work has pulled many a contest out of the fire.

Picked on the All American bowling team for seven consecutive years, Joe Norris of Chicago qualifies as one of the game’s all time high scorers. He has rolled ten 300 games, bowling’s sign of perfection. For 14 years he captained the famous Strohs Beer team of Detroit before coming to Chicago to find stronger competition. He has never won the All Star tournament and this will be his 11th try. With the fabulous figures he has totaled, he is bound to break through one of these years.

Mrs. Ladewig last year won twenty-four of her thirty-two games and never at any time was out of first place. She credits Joe Wilman with steadying her game, which now has reached a peak never before even approached by a woman bowler. Her scores are far better than most star men bowlers ring up and she maintains her perfectinning process by competing in four leagues.

The tournament this year is bigger and better than ever before and the pinfall should be deafening. The competition is fierce, and one bad game can lead to disaster. Other top stars competing include Junie McMahon, 1949 champ, and Paul Krumskie, another of Chicago’s great stars.

Hoover, the young champ, would like to prove his title last year was no fluke, but all the odds are against him. If he repeats his triumph of last year he'll stand the bowling world on its head. The crafty veterans will be at their best to remove the stigma of a defeat by a 21 year old and Dick’s best may not be enough to stop them.

WRESTLING MOGULS MEET
SET RULES FOR THESZ-SILVERSTEIN CONTEST

MEETING at the invitation of TV Forecast, the Illinois Athletic Commission outlined conditions under which it would recognize a Lou Thesz-Ruffy Silverstein match as a contest for the World's Heavyweight Wrestling Crown.

Speaking in behalf of the IAC, Joe Triner said $5,000 forfeit check would have to be posted by both promoters, Leonard Schwartz and Fred Kohler. Both agreed to post the money.

Triner insisted that two judges and a referee be drafted from collegiate ranks. Special rules would be drawn for the contest barring all exhibitionism, play-acting, eye-gouging and any form of shenanigans. Both promoters agreed to abide by the IAC regulations, however, neither would assume the responsibility of promoting the match.

Attending the meeting were Joe Triner, Lou Radzienda, and Ralph Metcalfe of the IAC; Les Vihon, TV Forecast exec, and sports editor Ed Pazdur; attorney Maurice Weigle; promoter Leonard Schwartz, and promoter Fred Kohler.
